

Annual Salute to Design & Construction

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES IN THE CONSTRUCTION INDUSTRY

For many years the design and construction associations in Springfield are sponsoring the Salute to Design & Construction, recognizing construction as the fourth largest contributor to our area's economic base. Salute features community education and participation activities, including presentations to area schools who are beginning to think seriously about their futures.

The sponsors of Salute will make presentations teams available to area schools this fall and year-round, as school officials request. Ideally, each team consists of four speakers who will discuss the roles of general contractors, subcontractors, suppliers and design professionals in the construction industry. We will again hand out imprinted pencils and d-clamps this year.

We will make presentations at area high schools and middle schools. We have presented to some elementary schools as well. If you have a preference as to age group, please let us know.

We need volunteer speakers. Please complete the form below if you can participate and send back as soon as possible. Preferences will be considered. We will find a time and place that will work with your schedule. If time or date is more important than location, leave the school preference line blank. If you would like to be teamed with somebody in particular, indicate the name, or put your own team together. Make as many copies as needed for all those interested.
